Date - 04/June/2021

Resource Personal - Dr. Hemachand Thummala

Professor and Graduate program coordinator

Dept. of Pharmaceutical sciences

South Dakota State University

Brookings, SD, USA

The United States is a popular destination for Indian students pursuing higher education. With world-class universities, a diverse range of programs, and a vibrant research environment, the US offers a multitude of opportunities for Indian students to advance their academic and professional goals. However, choosing the right specialization for graduate studies can be a daunting task. In this presentation, Dr. Hemachand Thummala, Professor and Graduate program coordinator at the Department of Pharmaceutical sciences at South Dakota State University, provided valuable insights and guidance for Indian students aspiring to pursue higher education in the US.

Key Considerations for Choosing a Specialization

Dr. Hemachand Thummala emphasized several key factors to consider when selecting a specialization for graduate studies in the US:

1. Interests and Passions: It is crucial to choose a specialization that aligns with one's interests and passions. This will not only make the study process more enjoyable but also increase the likelihood of success and career satisfaction.
2. Career Goals: Carefully consider your career goals and aspirations. Research the job market and industry trends to identify specializations that are in demand and offer promising career prospects.
3. Academic Background and Strengths: Assess your academic background and identify your strengths and areas of expertise. Choose a specialization that complements your existing knowledge and skills, allowing you to build upon your strengths.

4. Research Opportunities: Research opportunities play a significant role in graduate studies. Investigate the research opportunities available at potential universities, particularly those aligned with your interests and career goals.
5. Faculty Expertise and Guidance: The expertise of the faculty is crucial for a stimulating and enriching learning experience. Research the faculty members at potential universities and their research interests to ensure a good fit with your academic pursuits.

SPECIFIC ADVICE FOR INDIAN STUDENTS

Dr. Hemachand Thummala offered specific advice tailored to Indian students:

1. Start Early and Plan Thoroughly: The process of applying to graduate programs in the US can be lengthy and competitive. Start planning early, conduct thorough research, and seek guidance from mentors and advisors.
2. Prepare for Standardized Tests: Standardized tests, such as the GRE or GMAT, are often required for admission to graduate programs. Familiarize yourself with the test format, prepare diligently, and take practice tests to improve your chances of success.
3. Craft a Compelling Application: Your application should showcase your academic achievements, research experience, extracurricular activities, and career aspirations. Craft a compelling personal statement that highlights your unique qualities and motivations.
4. Network and Build Relationships: Networking is essential for success in any field. Attend conferences, connect with alumni, and reach out to faculty members at potential universities to build relationships and gain valuable insights.
5. Consider Financial Aid Options: Graduate studies in the US can be expensive. Explore financial aid options, such as scholarships, assistantships, and loans, to make your education more affordable. Professor Hemachand Thummala gave a clear idea about the studies and opportunities in USA. About 148 students attended this webinar. He also shared the struggles and challenges in it.
