The events promoted creativity, innovation, communication skills, scientific thinking, sportsmanship, and vaccination advocacy—reflecting the holistic development of future pharmacists.

Conclusion

The National Pharmacy Week (NPW) 2025 celebrations at Sarojini Naidu Vanita Pharmacy Maha Vidyalaya were conducted with remarkable enthusiasm, academic rigor, and cultural vibrancy. Across a wide spectrum of events—including elocution, rangoli, skit, scientific working models, painting, hackathons, food fest, dance competitions, and inter-college sports—students demonstrated exceptional talent, creativity, teamwork, and leadership.

Each activity reinforced the central theme of the year, “Pharmacists as Advocates of Vaccination,” highlighting the evolving role of pharmacists in patient education, community health, and public welfare. The events successfully integrated academic learning with practical application, innovation, and artistic expression, allowing students to develop essential professional skills such as communication, problem-solving, scientific inquiry, organizational capability, and social responsibility.

The active participation of students, the guidance of dedicated faculty coordinators, and the continuous support of the institution contributed significantly to the success of NPW 2025. Overall, the celebrations served as a powerful platform to inspire future pharmacists, strengthen inter-college collaboration, and promote holistic development. NPW 2025 concluded on a highly impactful and memorable note, reflecting the commitment of SNVPMV to excellence in pharmacy education and community service.
